Bonanzaville, USA is a history museum complex in West Fargo, North Dakota. Bonanzaville, the museum of the Cass County Historical Society, is made up of forty buildings on 12 acres, many of them are historic and from the region. These buildings have been moved to the museum grounds and now form a village setting. Most of the buildings have a special theme. Displays include a prairie church, a general store, a drug store, a fire station, Fargo's first house, and a schoolhouse. There are also several newer buildings which have been constructed on the grounds including an aircraft museum and an automobile museum. Other exhibits include horse-drawn vehicles, firefighting vehicles and equipment, medical and dental equipment, a law enforcement museum, a telephone museum, and a newspaper printing press. Bonanzaville has several hundred thousand artifacts in their collections and on display.

Visit www.bonanzaville.org for more information about attractions and exhibits.

SHARING THE HOPE

An event to inform, equip, and provide support to those concerned about the fast growing number of people being devastated by addictions and other life-controlling issues

May 3-4, 2019

Bonanzaville Historic Village
1351 West Main Ave • West Fargo, ND

Sponsored in part by

Benefits of a Living Free Ministry

A UNIQUE APPROACH

Even though Living Free is an effective tool to help those with life-controlling problems, it is designed to interest and benefit everyone. This allows people who need help to join without admitting a problem and risking being labeled as a person with a problem.

MORE THAN 12-STEP RECOVERY

Living Free has a 12-Step group, but in addition, offers more than 20 other small group curriculums. Biblically-based 12-Step groups are a powerful discipleship tool, but we believe many problems deserve specialized groups.

FLEXIBILITY

Living Free can be a complete small group system, or its components can be used to supplement your existing small group or recovery-type ministries.

BALANCE

People need support to overcome life-controlling issues, but compassionate conversation and understanding are not enough to facilitate real change. Living Free groups focus on biblical truth that confronts our delusion, the Spirit of God to search the secret places in our lives and God's people who will hold us accountable, pray with us, and show Christian love.

PERSONALIZED DISCOVERY

Groups have member guides and facilitator guides that are written so that almost any caring person with a small amount of training can lead. Because the group is not dependent upon an expert, whether in person or via video, participants discover answers in a personal way they don't forget.

PERSONALIZED SUPPORT

Churches who use Living Free materials know that they can call us and speak to people who have worked to develop these materials and have experience using them in churches.

NOT PROFIT DRIVEN

Living Free is non-profit, and as such has the freedom to develop and distribute materials in creative ways. Our focus is on equipping and helping Christians to minister effectively to their neighbors and not just on selling curriculum. Those who use our materials are friends and partners in ministry and not customers.
